

Stewartsboro holds school lock down

Published April 9, 2008

Stewartsboro Elementary School held a "Code Yellow" lock down as a precaution this morning because of reported road rage between two drivers on Old Nashville Highway in Smyrna, a district spokesman confirmed this afternoon.

No one from the campus, which is located on Old Nashville Highway, was involved, but the school around 8:30 a.m. locked its entrance and classroom doors to be on the safe side, said James Evans, a spokesman for Rutherford County Schools.

"They did send out a message to parents using School Messenger, so they were informed about why the school did a Code Yellow," Evans said.